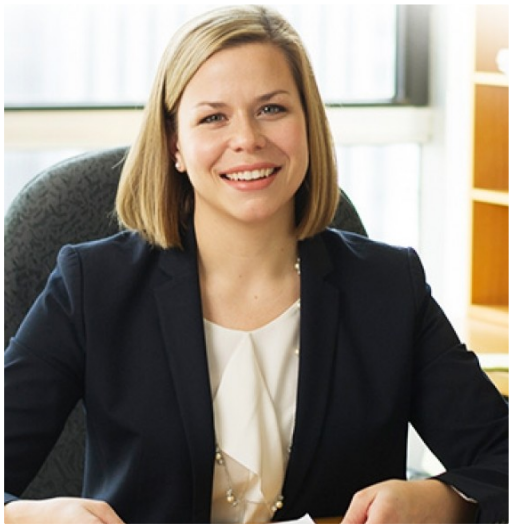
BRUNE

Erin C. Dougherty



Erin has extensive experience representing individuals and corporate clients in white collar and related civil matters. Her representations have covered all stages of litigation, from inception through appeals, in federal and state courts across the country. Erin has been part of teams of attorneys that have successfully persuaded government and regulatory agencies from bringing criminal charges, obtained advantageous pre-trial dispositions, secured favorable sentences, and successfully argued appeals. She has also counseled clients during government investigations and has experience conducting internal investigations.

Chambers USA has identified Erin as "Up and Coming" in the field of White-Collar Crime & Government Investigations. Chambers states that she is particularly adept at "explain[ing] complicated facts in a digestible manner" and "has really strong instincts about the best way to proceed."

She is a member of the bar in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.
